ABSTRACT

As we grapple with the repercussions of the ongoing Israeli war on Gaza, it is imperative to examine the broader implications for the future of the international order. The conflict raises critical questions not only for major powers but also for middle powers and those less equipped to influence global norms. This event seeks to explore the potential lessons and consequences of this conflict for the international system and its rules-based framework.

The lecture will delve into the immediate and long-term impacts of the war on Gaza, examining how these developments might reshape global power dynamics and influence the formulation and enforcement of international norms.
